

IART-049

Further Development of the Core-Drilling Method for the Nondestructive
Evaluation of Stress in Concrete Structures

Stephen Pessiki

Associate Professor, Department of Civil and Environmental Engineering, Lehigh
University, Bethlehem, PA

Michael McGinnis

Graduate Student, Department of Civil and Environmental Engineering, Lehigh
University, Bethlehem, PA

Industry Participants

Trillion Quality Systems

Abstract

The proposed research is directed at further development of the core-drilling method. The core-drilling method is intended to measure in situ stress in a variety of reinforced concrete, prestressed concrete and steel-concrete composite structures.